INTL 102: Economics, Politics, and International Change: The Modern World Economy

This course examines the evolution of the world economy from the late nineteenth century to the present. Our purpose is not only to describe the historical trends in the international economy but also to explain the causes and the consequences of these trends. Students come away with the basic tools they need to understand the global economy and the politics of international economic relations.

The history of the modern world economy divides into three periods. The Golden Age (1870-1913) was a period of extensive globalization; in some respects, nations were more economically integrated then than now. The Golden Age came to an end with the Interwar Interregnum (1919-1939), which saw nations abandon the world economy and turn inward behind high protectionist barriers and restrictions on international capital flows. Postwar Globalization (1945-2003) saw the gradual reemergence of the world economy, a trend that is now threatened by politics, anti-globalization forces, and crises in global finance.

Prerequisites: Familiarity with political science and economics is helpful but not required. We will cover the necessary material.

Requirements:

- 1) Midterm examination (30% of total grade).
- 2) Final examination (50%).
- 3) Section participation (20%).

Exams are composed of two equally weighted parts: Part I: Short-Answer Identifications and Part II: Essay Question(s). The IDs on Part I will be drawn from a longer list of potential IDs that will be distributed before each exam. You should define the ID and discuss its significance in the context of this course. Answers should be 1-2 paragraphs in length. The essay questions on Part II will incorporate material from readings and lectures. There will be one essay question on the Midterm and two essay questions on the Final.

Articles: Journal articles are marked on the reading list below with an asterisk (*). They are available electronically via E-Reserves at <http://reserves.ucsd.edu/>

Reading tips: Do the assigned readings by the day for which they are assigned. The reading load is moderate though not evenly distributed. Pay particular attention to weeks with heavier assigned readings and plan accordingly.

Academic Integrity: Integrity of scholarship is essential for an academic community. The University expects that both faculty and students will honor this principle and in so doing protect the validity of University intellectual work. For students, this means that all academic work will be done by the individual to whom it is assigned, without unauthorized aid of any kind.
